What is good revision?

"I don't know how to revise."

"Revision doesn't help me."

"I read my book for an hour and nothing went in."

These are some of the most common phrases heard by teachers when students are asked how their revision is going.

Please remember the following key points before you begin revising:

1. You are able to remember things!

You can remember your phone number. You can remember how to say thousands of phrases. You can remember the words and tunes to your favourite songs. You can remember the names of all of your friends, how to get to their houses, the names of their parents/carers and probably what they were wearing the last time that you saw them.

Some of you will be able to remember the names of the players in entire football teams, the names of everyone in your favourite TV programme, how to complete your favourite video game, the list goes on. The point is you are able to remember everything that you need to know for all of your exams – you just have to know some good ways to get your brain working and admit to yourself that only lots and lots of hard work will make it happen.

2. There simply is no substitute for hard work!

It is a tough message but one that it is better to learn early in life. The best personal successes in exams do not go to the cleverest, the luckiest or the most confident. They go to those who work the hardest. This is really good news because every single one of us can work hard: you simply make the choice to give up time that you might prefer to spend doing something else, roll up your sleeves and get on with it!

3. Reading your book is not revising!

It is reading, and reading is not an effective way of remembering things for exams (it is essential that you have read the texts for your English exams though!).

Refer to the accompanying Effective Revision booklet for lots of ways to revise successfully and with impact.

Subject content

Your teachers have provided this information to help you revise. Make sure you focus on these topics when planning your revision timetables. If you need additional support with their revision should arrange to see Ms Bell or Mr Lambourne before form time.
